

WESTERLY

A young man named George Beckwith, his home town Hartford, his age 25, and his present occupation keeper of a doll store with a traveling carnival company, now holding forth in Pawcatuck, pleaded guilty to the theft of a pair of socks, which arraigned before Judge Williams in the Third District court, Thursday. He told the court that his father was a grocer in Hartford, that he, himself, had worked in restaurants and department stores, had good reputation in Hartford, had been in the military service at Camp Devens six months, returned home seven weeks ago and had been away from home seven weeks. He said he began the "doll store" business with the carnival company in Norwich last week. He said he went to the Opie store with a friend, and that the friend bought two pairs of socks, that he had no money and helped himself to the socks. When crossing the bridge into Pawcatuck, he was hailed by a policeman, who he since learned was Mike Curtin. He threw the socks over the bridge rail into the river, and the officer arrested him.

Judge Williams questioned the young man closely as to his past, and plainly told him that he had doubt as to his said of himself being true. He warned the young man to avoid the broad path he was traveling, of his bad companionship and the undesirability of the chosen method of gaining a livelihood.

Sentence was deferred and Police Chief Brown was directed to get into touch with the young man's father in Hartford, if possible, and learn something of the record of the accused, and just how he stood with his parents. It was ascertained by telephone that the young man had given his correct name and that the statements made of himself were substantially true, but that there was some entanglement between father and son.

Sentence was held up, and Beckwith was placed on probation on payment of costs, $2.50. He said he would return to his home in Hartford forthwith.

Arrangements are being made for an historical pageant as a feature of the fiftieth anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Westerly, scheduled for the week ending June 25th. There is an abundance of material for such a pageant at Westerly, equal to that held at the Stonington celebration, which was pronounced the equal of any that could be produced anywhere. The big Stonington event was managed by a woman thoroughly schooled in that line of work, which accounted for the remarkable success. In Westerly this work, as at present planned, is to be done by women connected with local patriotic organizations.

The subscriptions of Rhode Island to the Victory loan amounted to $45,342,000, or more than twenty per cent. of the total, with 63,981 purchasers, or over ten per cent of the population. Here are the official returns for Westerly and other places in this section:
